From 1906 to 1963, five Black fraternities and four Black sororities were established and still flourish to this day. These Black Greek organizations, also known as the Divine Nine, earned their title due to their many acts of service and pivotal roles in enhancing the livelihood of people of color.

These organization were founded during a time when African-Americans were denied the equal rights and privileges most other Americans enjoyed, and even today the primary mission is to bring about justice and positive changes in the Black community. Join us in this discussion with some Divine Nine University of Arizona, community, and student leaders and learn more about the history, people and culture of these impactful organizations.
